Full-time Tenure-Track Position in Marketing

It is an exciting time in the Columbia College School of Business Administration. The newly formed School is looking for enthusiastic, innovative, qualified faculty interested in growing and building the School and its programs. The School is focused on programs that are relevant for today's students and tomorrow's workforce. We serve a diverse student body of traditional, adult, and online students. The School is committed to seeking accredited status with IACBE within the next one to two years.

The Columbia College School of Business Administration is currently accepting applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position in marketing beginning in the 2017-18 academic year. Candidates should have a Master's in Marketing or MBA and a doctorate in Marketing or a closely-related field from an accredited university. ABD's will be considered who are within one year of completing their degree. Preference will also be given to applicants with demonstrated successful teaching experience and real-world experience in the field of marketing. Experience in curriculum development for online formats is also a plus.

This is a full-time position in the undergraduate day program on the campus in Columbia, Mo. with a twelve/twelve credit hour load during a nine-month academic year. There may be additional opportunities to teach at the graduate level, depending on the candidate's qualifications. If you meet the stated qualifications, are enthusiastic about teaching, and are committed to continuous improvement of student learning, we encourage you to apply! Columbia College offers a competitive salary, and a comprehensive benefits package including healthcare insurance, retirement and tuition discounts for dependents.

About Columbia College:

Founded in 1851, as Christian Female College, the college was the first women's college west of the Mississippi River to be chartered by a state legislature. The college changed its name to Columbia College in 1970 when it transitioned from a two-year women's college to a four-year coeducational college.

Today, through its network of campuses in 36 nationwide locations, the Day Campus and Evening Campus in Columbia, Mo., and the Online Campus, the college serves more than 29,000 students annually. In addition to offering associate and bachelor's degrees, the college also offers master's degrees at the main campus, selected extended campuses and online.

About Columbia, MO:

Home to a flagship public university and two private colleges, Columbia offers a vibrant social and cultural climate, a safe environment and a low cost-of-living, as well as a high-quality school system.
