

Open rank position in Marketing

The Marketing Strategy and Innovation research team at Grenoble Ecole de Management (GEM) invites applications for a full-time position in Marketing at the advanced assistant or associate level, commencing in the Fall of 2018.

JOB QUALIFICATIONS

Candidates should demonstrate their commitment and ability to conduct excellent academic research with the objective of publishing in top-ranked journals (senior candidates should have an established international research record and network; junior candidates should demonstrate the potential to develop a top-level research agenda). Among other topics, we are welcoming applications with research expertise in the following areas: Marketing Strategy, Product and Service Innovation, Service Marketing, and Modelling.

Candidates should also demonstrate their ability to teach successfully to various audiences and their willingness to be involved in the institution. Note that prior knowledge of French is not required since GEM offers many teaching opportunities in English. However, training is offered to foreign faculty interested in learning French.

CONDITIONS

The regular teaching load is 120 face-to-face hours per academic year. Resources for faculty include a generous research budget, a behavioral lab and subject pool, and competitive salary (European standards) with an additional publication-based bonus system and a compensation for relocation expenses. Support includes teaching and research assistantship, as well as a team dedicated to external research grants application and management.
