School of Business

Marketing Department

The Marketing Department of the NJCU School of Business invites applications for two (2) full-time tenured or tenure-track faculty appointments (at assistant, associate, or full professor) commencing September 1, 2018 to teach at New Jersey City University campuses in Jersey City and Monmouth County, New Jersey.

Candidates should have an earned doctorate in Marketing or a closely related field, or provide evidence it will be fully completed prior to the end of the 2018-19 academic year. Candidates are expected to advise, mentor and teach students. The successful applicant will be required to teach both basic and advanced courses at the undergraduate and graduate level, will be expected to develop new programs and course offerings for the marketing department, and maintain scholarly engagement in their respective field. In extraordinary cases, as determined by the University, a terminal degree may not be required.

Candidates with the ability to teach multiple course preparations in marketing research and analytics, digital marketing and/or integrated marketing communications are preferred. Related industry experience in a professional marketing role is preferred.

For specific application requirements, please refer to NJCU website at: www.njcu.edu

Review of applications will begin immediately.

Search will continue until the position is filled with full consideration guaranteed to applicants who submit by December 31, 2017.
