Responsibilities The D'Amore-McKim School of Business at Northeastern University invites applications for tenured or tenure-track positions in the Marketing Group of the School, with employment beginning in the 2018-19 academic year.

Qualifications Candidates are required to hold a doctorate degree in Marketing or a related field by the start date. We seek candidates who have published in or aspire to publish in top-tier marketing journals. Candidates from all subfields, e.g., managerial/strategy, consumer behavior, quantitative, are encouraged to apply. All candidates will be expected to demonstrate excellence in teaching and to engage in service appropriate to their rank. Candidates at the entry-level Assistant Professor rank should show evidence of potential for high impact research that will appear in top marketing journals. More senior candidates will be expected to demonstrate a substantial record of scholarly achievement that includes publication in top marketing journals and a national/international reputation in their field of specialty. Senior faculty candidates should also present a strong record of institutional and professional service. Rank and salary are dependent on qualifications. The primary teaching need of the School is at the undergraduate level, but the School also offers programs at the masters' and executive levels and demonstrated potential for teaching at the graduate/executive level is a plus.

Additional Information Research Opportunities
Support for faculty research is broad and can be in the form of summer funding, teaching release time, database and software acquisition, graduate research assistants, and travel funds for research and conferences. Assistance in acquiring external funding is also available.
The Marketing Group
The Marketing Group consists of 16 full-time faculty, including 13 tenured or tenure-track faculty members, and values academically rigorous, practical research in combination with good teaching. Faculty research interests span multiple sub-disciplines, including digital marketing, sales management, services, consumer behavior, innovation, and strategy.
The D'Amore-McKim School of Business
The D'Amore-McKim School of Business is accredited by the AACSB and consists of over 150 full-time faculty serving over 5,000 students. The School as a whole emphasizes research in global management, innovation, and corporate governance. School-wide research resources are available in these areas and interdisciplinary research is encouraged.
Educationally, the D'Amore-McKim School of Business emphasizes Northeastern's nationally known cooperative education program. Ranked #1 in internships for eight years in a row by US News and World Report, at the undergraduate level the School offers its highly regarded Bachelor of Science in Business Administration (ranked #22 in the most recent Bloomberg Business Week ranking) and Bachelor of Science in International Business (ranked #10 in the most recent US News specialty ranking). The School's flagship full-time MBA program is currently ranked #54 by US News and #64 by Bloomberg Business Week.
