

Suffolk University
Sawyer Business School
Department of Marketing
Boston, Massachusetts, USA

The Marketing Department at the Sawyer Business School, Suffolk University invites applications for a tenure-track Assistant Professor position beginning September 2018.

We seek candidates who are committed to excellence in both teaching and research, and to engagement with students, colleagues, and business and professional communities. Successful applicants will demonstrate a commitment to developing and delivering academically cutting edge curricula which prepares students for marketing careers. Our curriculum centers on experiential learning to engage students with key educational stakeholders including other students, faculty, alumni, and local and global businesses.

Successful candidates must engage in meaningful, high quality research that has synergies with courses they teach and managerial relevance. Leveraging our location, which is just minutes away from Boston's corporate, financial, healthcare, sports, and government centers, candidates will develop collaborative relationships with alumni and the business communities for research projects and curricular activities.

Candidates must have experience and/or interest in teaching Services Marketing and/or Sales related courses at the graduate and undergraduate levels. The ideal candidate will have Services and/or Sales as an area of current research (including the evolving frontiers in digital and global economies) and excel in usage of related research methods and tools. An interest and capability in developing relationships with the local and/or global business communities will be a plus. Qualified applicants must have defended their dissertation or have strong evidence that the dissertation will be successfully defended by August, 2018.

Please send electronic application packets only. Included in the application should be an application letter, current curriculum vitae, teaching evaluations and the names (contact numbers/email) of three references to Dr. Elizabeth Wilson, Faculty Search Committee Chair, at dept_marketing@suffolk.edu.

Applications will be accepted until July 15, 2016. Department representatives will attend the 2017 American Marketing Association Summer Educator's Conference. Please indicate in your email if you are planning on attending the Summer AMA in San Francisco.
