Position at Rady School of Management, UC San Diego -- Assistant Professor of Marketing

The Rady School of Management (<http://rady.ucsd.edu>) at UC San Diego is committed to academic excellence and diversity within the faculty, staff and student body. The Rady School invites applications for one or more faculty positions at the assistant professor level (tenure-track) in the field of marketing. Candidates must have a Ph.D. or be working toward completion of a Ph.D. by the start date of the new academic year (July 2018). Preference will be given to candidates with emerging scholarly records whose research interests intersect well with Rady's marketing and/or related business analytics initiatives. Additional consideration given for teaching potential at the graduate level. The school seeks candidates whose research, teaching, and/or service has prepared them to contribute to our commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion in higher education. Salary and appointment level are dependent on experience and based on University of California pay scales. The positions are expected to have a start date of July 1, 2018.

Applicants are asked to submit a detailed vita, statement of research, statement on diversity, relevant research papers, and list of 3-5 references via our on-line submission web site:

<https://apol-recruit.ucsd.edu/apply/JPF01458>

The application should include: a detailed curriculum vita, a statement of research with relevant publications, and a diversity statement summarizing their contribution, or potential for contribution, to diversity and leadership. The diversity statement should summarize past experience in activities that promote diversity and inclusion and/or plans to make future contributions. Further information about the required diversity statement can be found at:
