The USC Marshall School of Business is a private research and academic institution committed to educating tomorrow's diverse and global leaders. We are a collaborative and inclusive group of scholars who often work together and with teams of graduate students. The marketing department is extremely research active and productive. In the UT Dallas ranking of publications in the Journal of Consumer Research, the Journal of Marketing, Journal Marketing Research and Marketing Science, we placed 5th in the North American rankings for the 2014-2018 time period. Faculty stipends and benefits are on par with leading business schools. Over the past five years, the Dean's office has implemented a Thought Leadership Initiative that has significantly expanded the size of the Marshall School's tenure-track faculty and is still heading toward fruition. The Initiative also reduces teaching responsibilities for new assistant professors and provides enhanced research resources for research-active junior faculty. We are also committed to an environment that embraces a diversity of topics and methodological approaches.

The University of Southern California combines the strengths of a major, large research university with the advantages of a private college. Located in the heart of Los Angeles, the university provides a pleasant work and living environment with all of the amenities, challenges, and opportunities of a world-class city, which some expert observers characterize as the eastern capital of the Pacific Rim.
