

University of Stavanger

University of Stavanger Business School

University of Stavanger

The University of Stavanger is located in the third largest urban region in Norway, with a dynamic labor market and scenic attractions. We are the only Norwegian member of the European Consortium of Innovative Universities. The university has high ambitions. We aim to be a driving force in the development of knowledge in the region, and an international research university with an emphasis on innovation. Together with our staff and students, we will challenge the well-known and explore the unknown.

The University of Stavanger Business School carries out research across all business disciplines. The study options include bachelor programs in business administration, accounting and auditing, as well as business law. The school also offers a master's degree in business administration, accounting and auditing, an Executive MBA program, and PhD education. The Centre for Innovation Research and Center for Entrepreneurship are both part of the business school.

Assistant/Associate Professor Positions in Marketing

The University of Stavanger invites applications for a full-time tenured/tenure-track faculty position in marketing at the University of Stavanger Business School. The position is open at the Assistant or Associate Professor level - contingent upon research and teaching record.

The University of Stavanger Business School is looking to strengthen its faculty within the area of marketing strategy, and is offering excellent conditions (including low teaching load). We will be interviewing candidates at the AMA Summer Academic Conference in Chicago; applicants not attending AMA will also be considered.

Minimum requirement

Applicants must possess a doctoral degree in marketing (or related field) or anticipate completion of a doctorate before the start date (preferably fall 2020). Associate professors must have completed their PhD degrees at the time of application. All applicants must have a strong research background (including strong quantitative skills) and have the ability and desire to conduct high quality research. Candidates for an Assistant Professor position must, as a minimum, demonstrate the ability and motivation to publish in top-tier marketing journals (rated in the Academic Journal Guide published by the Association of Business Schools) and to teach effectively. Candidates for an Associate Professor position must have a proven track record of research published in top-tier marketing journals and be able to document relevant teaching experience and proof of excellent performance (e.g., student evaluations).

Preference will be given to candidates with teaching and research interests in marketing strategy and analytics.

The position serves to strengthen research and teaching at the University of Stavanger Business School, and the Assistant/Associate Professor position provides opportunities for further promotion to Associate/Full Professorship.

The position is full-time, where the responsibilities include research and teaching in marketing, student supervision, as well as school and university service appropriate to the rank. The University of Stavanger emphasizes excellence in teaching, and all new faculty members must participate in "NyTi" (the university's guidance and integration program for teachers) within the first year of employment. The language of instruction will be English, and applicants must demonstrate good command of both oral and written English.

The University of Stavanger Business School offers competitive salary and attractive benefits, low teaching loads (two courses), and substantial research support. The position provides for automatic membership in the Norwegian Public Service Pension Fund, which guarantees favorable retirement benefits. Members may also apply for home investment loans at favorable interest rates. Finally, the school provides a significant budget for covering relocation expenses and language classes.

Requests for information should be directed to Professor Kenneth H Wathne, telephone +4797483315, email kenneth.h.wathne@uis.no.

The University is committed to a policy of equal opportunity in its employment practices. The University currently employs few female faculty members within the academic area and women are therefore particularly encouraged to apply.

Applications received before August 1st, 2019 will be assured of consideration. However, applications will be accepted until the position is filled.

Required Documents: Letter of Application, Curriculum Vitae, Research Paper/Publication/Writing Sample, Evidence of Teaching Ability (candidates for an Assistant Professor), Letter(s) of Reference.