

The Marketing Department at the David Eccles School of Business, University of Utah, is seeking two candidates for tenure-track faculty positions beginning in Fall 2020. The positions require high levels of scholarship, teaching, and collegiality. Applicants must have a Ph.D. in marketing or a related area or be close to completion for assistant level appointments. Appointments may be at the assistant, associate, or full professor level. The Department encourages applicants from all research areas. We are particularly interested in candidates with the long-term potential to contribute to the school's successful Master of Business Analytics program for one of the positions.

Teaching opportunities are available at the undergraduate, MBA, and doctoral levels. Salary, research support, and teaching load are competitive and benefits are excellent. Faculty members teach three semester-long courses per academic year. Applications will be accepted until July 26, 2019.

The University of Utah is located in Salt Lake City, the capitol of the State of Utah, the fastest growing tech state in the US. Nine ski & snowboard resorts are nestled in the mountains above Salt Lake City, which hosted the 2002 Winter Olympic Games. The University is also within a day's drive of five national parks. The American Economic Development Institute named Utah the Number One Pro-Business State in the country, the first state west of the Mississippi River to earn this recognition from the nonpartisan think tank, which noted the state's leadership in economic development, innovation, and entrepreneurship.
